GMO statement concerning T-SPX

According to the legislation in the European Union genetic modification occurs if certain techniques have been used*. The same legislation also defines techniques, which will not result in genetic modification. In accordance with this legislation we can state that

T-SPX does not contain GMOs and does not contain GM labeled raw materials.

GM labeling information concerning T-SPX

Legislation in the European Union states that a final food product must be labeled if it is a GMO itself, if it contains GMOs, or if it contains ingredients derived from GMOs.

In accordance with European legislation on labeling of final food products we can inform that

The use of T-SPX does not trigger a GM labeling of the final food product.
